About FSC

Healthy forests help life on Earth thrive. The Forest Stewardship Council® (FSC®) - a nonprofit organization that covers more than 150 million hectares of certified forests - provides the world's most credible sustainable forestry solution, trusted by NGOs, consumers, and businesses to help promote healthy and resilient forests, for all, forever. FSC helps forest managers, smallholders, and governments ensure thriving forest ecosystems and safeguard the livelihoods of forest communities. FSC's forestry standards, linked to a strict chain of custody certification, are a proven solution to fight the climate and biodiversity crises.

About the FSC General Assembly

The FSC General Assembly (GA) is FSC's highest decision-making body, with hundreds of participants, leaders, and key decision makers from indigenous people, environmentalists, businesses, and others in FSC membership convening to chart a path forward. At the GA, FSC members advocate for different social, economic, and environmental interests which and make important decisions related to the future of FSC and responsible forest management. Our democratic system ensures all voices are heard and respected, with equal decision-making rights for the environmental, social, and economic chambers, representing both high and low to middle-income countries for fair global representation.

About the location

The 2025 General Assembly will take place in Panama City, Panama at the Westin Playa Bonita Hotel. Panama is one of the only three countries in the world that are carbon negative, meaning its forests absorb more carbon than the country emits in total greenhouse gases. Panama hosts several global partnerships on climate, technology, and energy, including the Copernicus Project. Panama is also home of the FSC Indigenous Foundation, an Indigenous-led global organization governed by Indigenous representatives from around the world.
